

"August Flower"

Mr. Lorenzo F. Sleeper is very well known to the citizens of Appleton, Me., and neighborhood. He says: "Eight years ago I was taken sick, and suffered as you know, a dyspeptic case. I then began taking August Flower. At that time I was a great sufferer. Every thing I ate distressed me so that I had to throw it up. Then in a few moments that horrid distress would come on and I would have to eat and suffer again. I took a little of your medicine, and after taking a little more, 'August Flower' my dyspepsia disappeared, and since that time I have never had the first sign of it. I can eat anything without the least fear of distress. I wish all that are afflicted with that terrible disease or the troubles caused by it would try August Flower, as I am satisfied there is no medicine equal to it."

THE SAND OF AN OLD TIMER.

Fatal Bravery That Won a Hard Tribute

A company of ranchmen sat about the railroad station in Pomona the other afternoon waiting for the belated overland train for Los Angeles. Every man in the party knew the others, and there being an hour or two to wait story telling of the early days on the border and in Arizona and California came natural. Stories of old times, when Indians were bad and the white pioneers knew what bravery meant, were related. John Wilson of El Monte told the most absorbing story of the hour:

"Talk about sand in a man, gentlemen! I am telling you that it takes sand of the genuine article in any man to try and stand off single handed 40 or 50 Apaches when he knows just how the scalp will come, and that the end will be his own death. But that was just the kind of sand that was in Felix Knox when he was killed by the Apaches. You see Knox was an all round gambler, such as the tenderfoot from the east seems so much and knows so little about, but he had a heart in him bigger than any tenderfoot's head. Well, it was in the spring of 1879 Knox, with his wife and baby and a Mexican driver, was coming from Silver City to Clifton, down in Arizona. They got to York's ranch, which is on the Gila river, about 80 miles from Clifton, all right, but were told there that signs of Apaches had been seen, and that they had better go in camp there for a few days, but Knox—who had fought the Apaches dozens of times and didn't know what fear was—said he wanted to make Clifton that day, Indians or no Indians.

"Well, the Knoxes drove on. When they were about two miles from York's ranch, sure enough a big buck Indian came from behind a low, round top mesa. Knox knew there were plenty more of the red devils had there and that it meant a fight to death for him. He was as cool as a cucumber. He jumped out of the wagon, filled his pockets with two boxes of cartridges, and then kissed his wife and baby for the last time, but saying that he would have the redskins quieted in a few minutes. He ordered the Mexican driver to lash the team for all he was worth and to drive back to York's ranch as fast as the horses could jump. Then Knox waved his hand to his wife and said he was going to stand off a few Apaches, although he was sure there was a big band of them. As the team and wagon flew back to the ranch Knox, rifle in hand, started toward the hill for his last fight. He turned once and waved his sombrero to his wife and child and then strode on to his certain death.

"The Apaches a second later rushed out from behind the hill where they were secreted. Knox faced his foes, and standing stock still pumped lead at them until he fell down dead. The next day a party of us was made up, and we went out where the fight took place. Knox's body lay there amid the cactus in the sun. The Apaches, contrary to their usual custom, had not mutilated the fellow's body in the least. They had taken a clean pocket handkerchief out of Knox's pocket and carefully spread it over his face and had fastened it there by putting a small stone on each corner of it to hold it in its place and keep the hot sun from the dead man's face. That was their tribute to the sand in Knox. Seventy empty shells were found that had been emptied from Knox's Winchester, and one of the raiding Indians afterward said that their party numbered 42 and that Knox had killed seven of them."—Pomona Post.

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

Skookum Root Hair Grower

Is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither mercury nor arsenic. It is not a dye, but a deliciously cooling and refreshing tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads.

Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions, by the use of Skookum skin soap. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you send direct to us, and we will forward prepaid, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 4 for $2.00. Soap, 50c. per box; 4 for $2.00.

FRENCH POLICE SPIES.

How the Government Manages to Secure Information Privately.

After all that has been said about the villainess of the police system under the empire, which rendered it almost impossible for any one to be safe from espionage, even in private life, it might well be supposed that the republic had done away with this machinery for discovering and weaving plots so much more suited to the age of Louis XI than to the nineteenth century. It remains, however, very much what it was 33 years ago. Those things do not change in France.

Government's go, and the form of government, and there are successful by others, but the good old abuses—they are to be thought good by some people—live to the ship with her name. The French official organization is about the most perfect thing in the world, although all French people say so. They may speak on the subject as they like, it is very bad. It is almost as difficult now as it was under the empire to be certain that a man whom you may meet, either in society or out of it, does not belong to the secret police.

All over the country there are monasteries—a term expressing something stronger than spies. I have been unconvinced by them myself in the provinces. On one occasion I made a rather long stay in a little place where there were two hotels in fierce rivalry. One day a brigadier of gendarmes came over from a neighboring town on purpose to make inquiries respecting me.

He did not trouble me, but he questioned various people as to how I passed my time, about how much I spent a day, what sort of meals I had, and whether I appeared to have more money than I knew what to do with. The fact was I was suspected of being a spy in the pay of a foreign government. As I consider a bold front to be the best whenever there is anything of this kind in the air I got myself driven over the gendarmery, which was about eight miles off, and there he had it out with the brave brigadier.

I soon discovered that an informer had been at work and that the informer was no other than the keeper of the rival hotel, who for years had been receiving from a member of the secret police a list of what he was to do. He had been playing a double game, but at one time he must have done a service to somebody.

It is especially in Paris, however, that the secret police is supposed to be indispensable. Every government wishes to be kept well informed as to all that goes on in an enemy's camp. Such information can only be obtained from those who are willing to play the part of traitor or whose position enables them to observe what is going forward without exciting suspicion. They are technically termed "indicators" and may be long to either sex. When the Boulangist movement was convulsing France, the government had a great advantage over its opponents by handling of the secret fund and the secret police.

Boulangier's footsteps were dogged everywhere, and somehow M. Constans learned all that he wished to know concerning the plans and doings of the conspirators. An important point in this system is to make the "indicator" feel sure that whatever happens he will not be betrayed. The minister of the interior or of justice never asks the names of those by means of whose espionage certain political information has been gathered.

The money given for dark services is paid from hand to hand in cafes or other nonofficial places by commissionsaires, and the name of no auxiliary outside of the ranks of the regular police ever appears in a book. It is impossible for the government to do without this admirable system, so opposed to the ideal of a democratic state. The Court-Semoury scandal has led to much discussion on this question. THE SALT LAKE "TRIBUNE" CONVERTED.

In the presidential campaign of 1892 the Salt Lake Tribune advocated the election of Harrison while pretending to be a staunch friend of free coinage. Several copies of the paper were distributed in Nevada, free to anybody who would take them at the postoffices. The Journal directed attention to the course of the Tribune, as it did to the actions of others, who, while pretending to be friends of silver, were opposed to free coinage. For this the Tribune attacked the editor of the Journal personally, and a Nevada paper, which pursued the same inconsistent course as the Tribune, copied the scurrilous article. Now the Ogden Standard, a Republican paper, has the following on the Tribune's perfidy and its cause:

Last year the Salt Lake Tribune received several thousand dollars from the national Republican committee for flogging the names of Harrison and McArthur at the head of its columns. The apathy—not to call it by a worse name—which prompted the committee to make such a bargain, may account for the defeat. When the man who managed the campaign had so little judgment and fairness, what could the result be but disastrous? They took from the Republicans of Utah and gave to a paper which was fighting those same Republicans. To the credit of the best men in the party be it said that they repudiate previous knowledge of and subsequent responsibility for the transaction. But of that, more may be said at another time.

The Tribune, having received the money, had the momentary grace to desire to give something in return. There being no presidential electors in Utah it had to skimpish on the outside. What did it have of value? Well, in the surrounding silver states, it was esteemed as the infallible oracle on the silver question; and its reputation was worth something. So in a burst of illogical honesty, it concluded to rob the cause of silver in order to give something for cash received—not that a betrayal of its trusting devotees would help Harrison, but betrayal would indicate that it was at least as honorable as Judas, if not so decently remorseful. Then came that astounding flop. The Tribune deserted the whole morale of the silver cause by abandoning the ratio of 16 to 1, and advocating or at least tacitly consenting to such ratio as might suit the powers that be, well knowing that such abandonment would leave silver with no case in court—for if we are not to have justice and an honest restoration, but are to have expediency, the ratio may be 20 to 1 or 30 to 1, and the wheat and cotton growers with the silver producers will be destroyed. But to cover its baseness, as the kiss by which it betrayed, it read long and affectionate and truthful homilies to the people of the silver states. It declared that the third party movement was a ghost dance, without utility and without regard. It begged Republicans to pause in their frenzied devotion to a movement which could not aid silver but might destroy the party of their enduring love. It affirmed that the cause of the white metal would best be served if its advocates remained with the old great national political organizations. The little heaven would sometime leave the whole lot.

But now that the thirty pieces are gone, what does the Tribune do? Does it go hang itself? Not directly. It is now engaged in a self-pleasing endeavor to ruin the Republican cause. Taking for a text the opportunity, since that now is an opportune time to set the Republican ball rolling in Utah, the Tribune has the perfidy to say among other things of similar trend: "The fact is, now is the opportune time to drop both the old parties, and organize a new party that will take some account of the people and let the money sharks shift for themselves."

So the Tribune is converted and now joins the "ghost dancers" in their effort to secure the remonetization of silver by the only reasonable and constitutional method known—the election of men who are known to be in favor of it.

IN FAVOR OF STATE BANKS.

It is stated that the president and secretary of the treasury are in favor of the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on state banks. Petitions in favor of the change have been presented by nearly all the banks of New York, Boston and other eastern cities. It meets with unexpected favor from the national banks, nearly all of which ask that a bill be passed which will permit the reorganization of national banks as state banks.

It is thought that the treasury department will draft the bill and that it will be introduced in the senate and house at the same time. It will provide that any national bank or any other corporation may deposit with the state treasurer approved securities for which the state officer issues a certificate. Upon presentation of this certificate to the proper officers at Washington notes will be issued by the government to the bank.

It is expected that this scheme will satisfy the people of the south and west who have been demanding the free coinage of silver as well as the eastern bankers and thus end the silver agitation, but it will be difficult to satisfy the people that the government should guarantee the redemption of notes issued by state banks when it has millions of ounces of silver bullion stored in the treasury which could be coined and put in circulation as standard dollars or silver notes redeemable in such dollars.

The allegations on which complaints are based appear in the JOURNAL. As public schools are supported by the public they should be conducted by the public, and as the Paradise school trustees are honorable men, there should be no difficulty between them and the patrons of the school, and probably there would not be any if the patrons would make a plain statement of facts and submit it to the school board.

HOW SENATORS STAND.

A Poll Taken for the Information of the President.

WASHINGTON, September 4.—A poll of the senate on the repeal of the Sherman act has been taken for the information of the president and is given as follows:

For repeal—Aldrich, Allison, Brice, Caffery, Camden, Cary, Chandler, Culom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gordon, Gorman, Gray, Hale, Hawley, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Houston, Lindsay, Lodge, McMillan, McPherson, Manderson, Mills, Mitchell of Wisconsin, Morgan Morrill, Murphy, Palmer, Platt, Proctor, Sherman, Smith, Squire, Stockbridge, Tarpie, Vilas, Voorhees, Washington, Washburn, White of Louisiana, Wilson. Total 47.

Against repeal—Allen, Bate, Berry, Cockrell, Coke, Colquitt, Daniel, Dubois, George, Harris, Irby, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, Kyle, Martin, Mitchell of Oregon, Pepper, Perkins, Pettigrew, Power, Pugh, Roach, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Vance, Vest, Walthall, White of California, Wolcott. Total 30.

Doubtful, with a disposition to vote for repeal—Blackburn, Butler, Rahsom. Total 3.

Doubtful, with a disposition to vote against repeal—Call, Cameron, Hansbrough, Pasco, Quay. Total 5.

Several senators are paired, but should every senator vote the above is believed to be a fairly accurate statement. The list of senators set down as for repeal contains several who, as a last resort only will vote for unconditional repeal. Some of them would much prefer to have the bill amended, but should they fail in this they are said to be prepared to vote for unconditional repeal.

One of the amendments proposed provides for the coinage of bullion now in the treasury and the issuance of silver certificates therefor. Another will provide for the purchase of $200,000,000 or $300,000,000 in silver at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury for coinage purposes. By the coinage of the bullion now on hand and the purchase of additional silver, the silver coinage of the United States will be between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000. It is now nearly $600,000,000. When $800,000,000 shall have been reached the coinage of silver is to cease.

The financial policy of France, which has a silver circulation of $700,000,000, seems to be the model many senators are disposed to follow.

The old Bland-Allison Act also will be introduced as an amendment and these will be about the same amendments as were introduced in the house for the increase in the ratio.

Dr. Thatcher Graves of Boston, the physician accused of the murder of Mrs. Barnaby, a wealthy widow, was found dead in his cell yesterday at Denver. Graves was once convicted and sentenced to be hanged, but obtained a new trial. He left a letter affirming his innocence.

Senator Stewart has secured the original silver demonetization bill of 1873 and another copy of the measure which went to the house, interlined, erased and generally tampered with, and will present them in his speech on the "Real History of the Demonetization of Silver." It is said that he will attack Sherman savagely.

The result of the elections in France last Sunday is known except in some districts. In the second balloting the Republicans gained twenty-seven seats. In the new chamber, Republicans of all shades will have 515, Conservatives sixty-eight. The former are divided into several groups, including twenty-five "rallies" and 65 radical socialists.

The election of commander-in-chief is the leading topic of discussion among the veterans of the grand army assembled at Indianapolis. The choice is thought to be between Captain J. G. Adams of Massachusetts and Major Charles P. Lincoln of the department of the Potomac, though a number of others are spoken of, including Postmaster Sexton of Chicago.

His friends of free coinage in the house of representatives are jubilant over their success in securing an amendment to the rules by the terms of which the committee on coinage can report bills at any time to the house without the consent of the committee on rules.

Ayer's Pills

Are compounded with the view to general usefulness and adaptability. They are composed of the purest vegetable aperients. Their delicate sugar-coating, which readily dissolves in the stomach, preserves their full medicinal value and makes them easy to take, either by old or young. For constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, and the common derangements of the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels; also, to check colds and fevers, Ayer's Pills

Are the Best

Unlike other cathartics, the effect of Ayer's Pills is to strengthen the excretory organs and restore them their regular and natural action. Doctors everywhere prescribe them. In spite of immense competition, they have always maintained their popularity as a family medicine, being in greater demand now than ever before. They are put up both in vials and boxes, and whether for home use or travel, Ayer's Pills are preferable to any other. Have you ever tried them?

PARADISE SCHOOL.

Alleged Cause of the Trouble.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—In the recent number of the JOURNAL containing the remonstrances of the people of Paradise against the action of the trustees, Riley and Kemler, we find an editorial in which it is intimated that the parents might possibly be at fault as the "grounds of the objections are not stated." Now in order to remove any little mixture of skepticism that may linger in the minds of those who are not conversant with the facts I wish to make some statements—not mere assertions—of facts which can be backed up by records and statistics. First—The grounds on which the objections are based are that Messrs. Riley and Kemler employed teachers that had been "weighed in the balance and found wanting," that are incompetent, inefficient, and wholly unfitted for the place. They ignored the petitions, remonstrances, supplications, implorings and pleadings of mothers, of patrons, of taxpayers and in fact of their constituents who placed them in office. The petitions, etc., were not the product of some fertile brain whose imagination pictured the mutilated anatomy of some refractory pupil, or neglected homage to some mother's darling. They were the result of careful investigation and patient endurance. For two years the parents looked quietly on while their school fund was being squandered and their children made victims of malpractice at the hands of incompetent, unprincipled novices. As to the faults that the patrons find in the principal, their name is "legion" but in no way magnified nor mythical.

When C. L. Flack took charge of the school two years ago he found an orderly and well disciplined school, a good library and all the appliances and apparatus that schools need. The first offense of the principal was that of changing the prescribed text books, with which the pupils were all supplied, for some favorite books of his own choice. The pupils studying history, grammar and physiology were all required to buy new books or remain out of these classes. Some parents could afford it and got the books, others could not and others would not. So these pupils were obliged to leave the school or attend merely for the purpose of hearing their classmates recite from the favorite books of the principal. The attention of the trustees was called to the fact that the principal was violating the law, but they winked at it; even our worthy state superintendent was hoodwinked into the belief that these books were only used as supplementary work, when, in fact, they were used as text books. All this time the air of the schoolroom was resonant with slang phrases from the teacher. At the close of this first year a majority of the patrons signed a petition asking that a change be made in the teachers, but all to no purpose, the same were re-engaged for the second term. This had the effect of thinning out the school, as patrons moved away, others sent their children off to an adjoining district, while more remained out of school entirely. Now comes another direlection of duty on the part of said trustee. At the close of the second term the taxpayers made an examination of the trustees' books and the teachers' record of attendance. They found that at the beginning of the year C. L. Flack received a salary of $100 per month. In January it was raised to $110, and in February again to $120. They also found that the reason for this raise was the "crowded condition of the school." The record showed an average attendance of less than thirty pupils at $100 per month, less than twenty at $110, and only twelve at $120. By some process of reasoning they produce a bitter unknown theorem that the "less work done the higher salary paid." This committee also found that Chas. Kemler, trustee, furnished the school supplies and failed to give an itemized account, which the law requires. So our worthy county superintendent may, as far as he knows, have paid $7 for a broom or $5 for a tin dipper.

Now, Mr. Editor, if this is not squandering the school money pray tell us what it is doing? It is certainly wasting the most precious period in human lives, that of school days. The school opened here the 28th of August, 1893, with six pupils belonging to C. L. Flack's department. There are eighteen boys belonging to that department between the ages 14 and 18 years and nearly as many girls who will not attend, for they will not submit any longer to the taunts and slang of an uncultured and unprincipled teacher. These pupils belong mostly to parents who are not able to send them away to school and the result will be that they will have to go out into the battle of life deprived of their rightful heritage, an education.

Just a word here to denounce this "one man power" of school trustees, and loose and lavish manner of conducting teachers' examinations. The idea that "anyone can teach school" holds with wonderful tenacity in the minds of some trustees; also that the school money is a charity fund and must be given to those who need the money. What we most need in the school is skilled labor in the school room by teachers who have been taught the art of teaching and have a soul in the work. Nevada maintains a good normal school in which teachers can be fitted for this work but under the present regime there is no encouragement for our girls or boys to enter. After spending the best part of their lives in preparing to teach and receive only find themselves in competition with some kitchen maid who through the influence of some wire-pulling political friend has procured a second grade certificate which under the present law can be renewed and infinitum. LAI D TO REST.

Obsequies of the Late Warren H. Gould.

The funeral services of the late Warren H. Gould were held at the family residence at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Thos. Magill, pastor of the Congregational church. The vocal music was furnished by Mrs. G. H. Taylor, Mrs. Geo. B. Hymers and Messrs. Parry and Evans, and the ceremony throughout was very solemn and impressive. Mr. Gould having been an active member of the board of trustees of the State Agricultural Society, the pallbearers were selected from that organization and consisted of W. O. H. Martin, Wm. Webster, Theodore Winters, C. C. Powning, John Bradley, Orvis Ring, M. D. Foley, W. S. Bailey, A. Banta and P. H. Mulcahy. At the close of the services at the residence the solemn procession formed and followed the hearse to Hillside cemetery where the mortal remains of the kind father, true friend and noble citizen were quietly laid to rest. The funeral was largely attended and the procession one of the longest ever seen in this community.

LARGE CASTINGS.

Lively Times at The Foundry.

By far the largest casting ever made in Reno was turned out last Saturday by Mr. Michael at the foundry here. This immense piece of metal is about twenty-two feet long and weighs three tons, and though huge in size is perfect and smooth. Mr. Michael has been to considerable expense in purchasing new and improving old appliances to make his work a complete success, and his foundry is now equipped for making castings of equal or greater dimensions than that just completed. He is making fronts for the Reno Real Estate and Investment Company's building on Virginia street, which is to be the finest in the state, and he will make another large casting within a few days and skilled mechanics are now engaged on the work.

There are several large orders to be filled at the foundry, which is now a busy place and speaks well for one of Reno's growing industries.

A Georgia paper says: "There is no use of America worrying about the future. Should this country go to grass, we will be able to dispose of the hay at from thirty to fifty dollars a ton."

Last Tuesday night lightning struck three of Hank Mathews horses, near Williamson, Douglas county, knocking them down and instantly killing one of them. A big freight team, a couple of hundred yards away, was stunned.

The Chronicle says an attempt was made Sunday evening to burn the public school building at Gold Hill. Kindling wood saturated with turpentine had been placed against the building and set on fire. Prompt action on the part of the fire department saved the building.

Sunday afternoon Walter Barth sentenced from Ormsby county for seven years for the crime of burglary, made his escape from the state prison. He was employed as fireman for the engine that pumps water from the springs to the prison. Warden Bell started a posse in pursuit but the Tribune says he had not been recaptured last evening.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market."

SEA BATHS IN ITALY.

USE MADE OF THE BLUE WATERS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN.

Exhilarating Plunges in Nature's Great Lavatory—in the Water All the Reserved Etiquette of the Drawing Room Vanishes—Interesting Features.

Those who have been fortunate enough to glide from Italy's picturesque shores into the warm blue waters of the Mediterranean and float luxuriously in the fully sea among a perfect school of happy bathers will never forget it. Never Venice, Naples, Capri, Amalfi! It makes one's eyes glisten at the very thought of it. To Italy's splendid title, "The Land of Poetry and Song," might also be added "The Land of Baths" were it not that the ancient name to some fastidious minds would detract from the beauty of the first.

The ancient Romans, borrowing as they did all the worthy imitable customs from their Greek and Egyptian neighbors, found the baths especially suited to their luxurious tastes and carried them to a degree of excellence which had never been attained making them not only of immense benefit in a sanitary way, but establishing them as a favorite rendezvous for people of culture and talent as well as for the poorer classes, who also enjoyed the privilege of their own compartments. Look at the baths of Diocletian, which are estimated to have accommodated no less than 18,000 people at one time. And those of Caracalla at Rome. What wonderful ruins of a still more wonderful structure! In these baths bathing became a science. Cold baths, tepid baths, hot baths, oil baths, sun baths—every kind of bath! Why simply to visit the place was a rest and recreation. Statuary and paintings lent beauty on all sides. Music charmed. Orators and poets entertained. What beauty in the remaining walls of the Pompeian bath! The frescoes are as bright and beautiful as if they were done but yesterday, and the marble carvings and pavements which escaped the fury of the burning mountain have softened in color almost to an ivory.

Then the baths of Nero. Around the coast on the charming picturesque road leading from Pozzuoli to Baiae one alights from the little carozzella and clambers up to a cave cut in the side of the mountain, wherein is a spring heated to a high temperature in its subterranean channels by veins of volcanic life which abound near Vesuvius. This spot suited well the comfort loving Nero, who made of it a favorite resort and caused the rough stone couches to be placed there, which still remain.

One reads little of sea bathing in those days. Every Roman colony thought to construct its baths as it thought of raising its temples. But now all Italy turns its face to its natural advantages, and with one accord cries as early as May, "Let us to the sea!" Not all the establishments are as convenient and as well constructed as the Lido at Venice and the baths of Positano at Naples, but they are all on the same general plan. Every place open to the use of the public is provided with a pavilion where people congregate to discuss the latest topics, or to devour with eager ears the latest gossip, while there is always music, from morning till night, if only one of those harassing "organettes" or portable pianos, which grind incessantly and seem always to be playing "Santa Lucia" or "Bella Napoli" and vary sometimes with the "Trovatore."

On either side of the pavilion are the "camerini," or dressing rooms—one side reserved for ladies, the other for gentlemen. These "camerini" are the roughest kind of little wooden boxes, carpeted with a mat of braided straw and furnished with four rude chairs. In each of four persons each is supposed to accommodate. Then there are the steps leading to the water. The fee for the use of each room is one franc fifty (or 30 cents), including the linen sheets, the price never varying whether there be one or four persons together.

Once in the water and presto! change! all the reserved etiquette of the Italian drawing room vanishes. Then and there only does liberty exist, and the pretty little signorinas, as well as the handsome signorinas, in the very simplest kind of bathing costume, generally dark blue with a little white braid, transformed into veritable water nymphs, swim off with all the grace and alacrity of a fish, never fearing, never tiring, just as if they had been born to it. And there is no end to romance. Fancy a boat full of handsome young officers towing a trail of pretty, bright-eyed girls to some quiet, picturesque spot, where all indulge in a jolly little luncheon. It doesn't seem so very much, does it? And yet one recalls that these same young officers may never have dared address the young ladies on land, or if they have had the good fortune to do so it was only under the watchful eye of the omnipresent chaperon, or then we realize what it really means. Then there are the quieter places, like the placid blue waters of Sorrento, away down under the high walls of rock, where one may float and gaze up at the beautiful vines and fragrant orange gardens. And Capri, where the wonderful blue grotto is free to all who can swim there, while the hurried traveler inevitably falls a victim to the merciless boatmen who shake their hands in one's face and demand "la tariffa," which never fails to exceed the fee regularly established.

Yes, the sea is a blessing to the Italians open to all and appreciated as well by poor as by rich. Indeed one finds himself wondering what would become of the lower classes—take the Neapolitans, for instance—if it were not for this wise provision of nature. They are said to be constitutionally opposed to the use of water in winter on the grounds that it means certain death by cold, but in summer they fairly live in the sea, and the little street urchins frolic about and dive for the pennies of the "forestieri" without even the embarrassment of a bathing costume.—Chicago Tribune.

BALD HEADS!

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

Skookum Root Hair Grower

Is what you need. The production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither mineral nor oil. It is not a dye, but a delicately cooling and refreshing tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads.

Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions by the use of Skookum Root Hair Grower. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you send direct to us, and we will forward promptly, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 5 for $5.00. Soap, 50c. per jar; 6 for $2.50.

CURING A NERVOUS CRANK.

Treatment employed in Restoring a Well Man Who Imagined He Was Ill.

On the east side lives a physician whose success in the treatment of nervous disorders has brought to him, rather against his own wishes, considerable practice among a class whom he describes as "nervous cranks." One of these patients, a man of large means, has caused a great deal of trouble to the doctor, who seeing that the case was purely one of mental idiosyncrasy, was unwilling to prescribe a course of drugging or other injurious treatment. The man insisted that his nervous system was completely unstrung and that the physician should take his case in hand.

"Then you can see how nervous I am," said the patient one day, in the doctor's office, as he picked up an incandescent electric light bulb from an adjoining table. "Look at that. See how that carbon coil inside of the bulb vibrates and trembles from my nervousness!"

"Very well," replied the physician, determined now to deal with the case in another way, "you are more nervous than I supposed, but I think I can fix you out all right in five or six weeks."

An assortment of bogus pills and potions was given to the patient, and he was placed under a rigid rule for sleep, diet, baths and exercise. His physical health, which had been excellent to begin with, improved steadily; but his nervous condition, as indicated by the fluctuations of the incandescent bulb, which he found could be held at hand every time he visited the doctor's office showed little or no trace of mending.

One day, however, near the end of the fourth week, the patient, upon taking the bulb from its accustomed place and holding it up to the light, was surprised to find that the vibrations of the carbon were almost nothing. Beaming with hope, he called the physician's attention to the fact. The latter was surprised and delighted. The patient tested himself with the bulb in his right hand, then changed it to his left and then repeated the operation, always with the same gratifying result. The treatment had done its work. He felt like a new man. He was satisfied from the first that these pills would do him no harm.

"He said for Europe the other day," remarked the physician, "and as he is to remain abroad for five years, I presume there is no danger of his learning how I cured him. He was so true with the idea of testing the condition of his nervous system by the vibrations of the carbon in that electric light bulb that I have remarked his fancy. After three or four weeks of careful living, and when he had put himself into that class physical condition, I simply changed the bulb to a carbon coil I substituted one that I had made with a fine coil of oxidized silver wire closely resembling the other and which was so stiff that it was capable of almost no vibration when the bulb was held in the patient's hand. He took it, saw that the vibrations had ceased and concluded that he was cured."

"In some way, perhaps by accident or when in condition of mental excitement, he had noticed the trembling of the carbon in a bulb when held in the hand, and had instantly made up his mind that he was suffering from nervous disorder. He insisted upon using the same means in testing his progress toward recovery that had first persuaded him that he was ill, and I was compelled to acquiesce and treat him from that basis. He had evidently had little experience with these bulbs. Ordinary tests and observation would have shown him that no man, however sound, can hold an incandescent bulb in his unsupported hand so steadily that the carbon inside of it will not vibrate."—New York Herald.

IT IS NOT what we say but what

Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story of its merit. When in need of medicine remember HOOD'S CURES

Very Polite.

"How do you like your new music master?"

"He is a very nice, polite young man. When I made a mistake yesterday, he said, 'Pray, mademoiselle, why do you take so much pains to improve upon Beethoven?'—Philadelphia Telegraph.

How do you do when you put shoes on or clothing? Don't you go to the place (if you can find it) where they tell you that you can wear the articles out, and then, if you're not satisfied they'll refund the money? Why not do the same when you buy medicine?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is sold on that plan. It's the only blood purifier so certain and effective that it can be guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or you have your money back.

It's not like the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas. All the year round, it cleanses, builds up and invigorates the system. If you're bilious, run down, or dyspeptic, or have any blood taint, nothing can equal it as a remedy.
